John is building his practice around data privacy, corporate governance, and regulatory compliance. He has experience drafting privacy policies, reviewing corporate compliance frameworks, advising on privacy disclosures, and conducting privacy audits.

His work reflects a commitment to helping organizations meet evolving regulatory standards while maintaining transparency and trust with stakeholders. By combining legal insight with practical compliance strategies, John supports businesses in navigating complex governance challenges and safeguarding sensitive information.

John began his career at ArentFox Schiff as a summer associate. Prior to joining ArentFox Schiff, John interned for the US Senate, where he assessed legal issues concerning the Senate Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship. Additionally, John was a Senior Business Analyst at Optum Insight, where he managed executive reporting materials and led numerous initiatives to promote sustainable real estate, call center, and data management practices.
